

Understanding the Research to Policy Process in Zambia

A new working paper on Understanding the Research to Policy Process in Zambia: the case of Cotrimoxazole Preventative Therapy has been released. This shares the results of a study in Zambia looking at how the evidence on cotrimoxazole prophylaxis influenced policy.

This is part of a larger research project that is also looking at this question in Malawi and Uganda. Work will also commence soon investigating how the policy on cotrimoxazole prophylaxis has translated into practice.